There was a heavy fog and the road was wet when the accident occurred. Kuhn estimated his speed at 40 miles an hour when the crash occurred.

Major Sawders Predicts Russia Will Not Beat Finns

A prediction that Russia would never win the war with Finland was voiced by Major James C. Sawders, world traveler and lecturer, in a talk given this morning in the Majestic theatre under the auspices of Gettysburg college. A large audience of college, high school and townfolk attended.

The speaker used as his subject "The Present Situation in Finland."

Through slides and moving pictures used during the lecture, Major Sawders pointed out how impossible it would be for Russia to win the war which most people think is possible after the wintry weather has gone. Numerous lakes make the country a veritable marsh land in spring and summer which make it impossible to move mechanized army equipment, according to the speaker.

Denounces Stalin

Scathing denunciation of Joseph Stalin and his militaristic puppets was repeated time and again by Major Sawders who referred to the communistic group as a "bunch of bungling bums."

As presented by the speaker, the Mannerheim line is actually as strong as the French Maginot line and is made of solid granite rather than steel and concrete. Lying between the strong Finnish line and the Russian border is a comparatively small area in which it would be impossible, the speaker said, for Russia to effectively maneuver a large mass attack against the line. An attack in great numbers to the north would be equally ineffective by the Russians, he claimed, due to their inability to supply the army because of lack of good transportation facilities.

Major Sawders pointed out that much of the success of the Finns can be laid to their excellent facilities for moving troops and supplies quickly. The speaker revealed that Finland has an excellent network of highways which makes this possible.

Intelligent People

According to Major Sawders the Finns are a hard-working people known throughout the world for their honesty. Since being separated from Russia in 1917 much headway has been made in construction of new homes, highways and railways. Contrary to most belief, the Finns are an intelligent people and there is not one person in Finland who cannot read and write, said the speaker.

While predicting Russia could not win in its war with the Finns, Major Sawders pointed out that help must be had from friendly nations. Already this aid is a being received. Sweden and Norway, both of whom are scheduled next in the path of Stalin's ambitions, are sending more and more volunteers to Finland and are organizing their own military units which it is believed will be fighting shoulder to shoulder with the Finns in the near future.

The curious tie-up in the Italy-German-Russian military alliances which have been publicized for some time and the double-cross between the various powers was revealed in an incident which Major Sawders alleges occurred within the last two weeks.

Premier Mussolini of Italy consigned 10 planes to Finland to be shipped through Germany with Hitler's permission. However, on arriving at their destination only two airplanes were found in the crates, the others having been kept by Germany. Immediately Mussolini took the German government to task for the incident with the result the planes were returned to Italy and from there were shipped by boat to Finland.

He had been arrested last Thursday.

Postmaster Lincoln's Office Is Re-Opened

New Salem, Ill., Feb. 12 (AP).—The county postoffice where Abraham Lincoln held his first government job was re-opened today with elaborate ceremony as a new memorial to the Civil war President.

The little known story of Lincoln's humble role as a $25 a year rural postmaster was retold to hundreds gathered in this little log cabin hamlet where the Emancipator got his start as a politician and statesman.

Thousands of letters, most of them for collectors seeking the "Lincoln's New Salem" cachet, were sent to the office for the formal dedication of the log postoffice by Postmaster General James A. Farley.

"In this age of dictatorship and government by cruel violence, it is heartening to recall that Abraham Lincoln was a product of democratic government," Farley said in a prepared address. "His rise to eminence and immortality in the annals of statecraft would have been impossible under any other system."

The postoffice was opened with more ceremony than this village ever saw in Lincoln's day. An old fashioned stagecoach carried one batch of mail to the prairie town before the dedication, which was to be climaxed with delivery of other mailbags dropped from a modern airliner circling over the village.

Lincoln was postmaster of New Salem for three years—from 1833 to 1836. He augmented his postal earnings of $25 to $30 a year by clerking, harvesting, surveying and other odd jobs.

Lincoln's successor as postmaster, John W. Gellerman, a young farmer, hopes he will be paid more than Lincoln received a century ago. Gellerman will be paid according to postal receipts from the tourists who visit New Salem state park.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

We pause to pay silent tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln who was born one hundred and thirty-one years ago today. A martyr to the cause of the Union of these United States, Lincoln is perhaps the most generally revered of all Presidents of this great nation.

Each year there is increasing interest in the life and achievements of the sixteenth President and each year there appears to be renewed interest in Gettysburg because of Lincoln.

* * *

In observing the anniversary of the great emancipator's birth we present a few interesting features with reference to Lincoln's life, his accomplishments and those things that pertain to him or his anniversary observance.

* * *

It has been repeatedly said that Lincoln was continually suffering defeat. It is true, however, he was never daunted by these reverses and persevered to achieve the highest honor possible in this nation.

When Lincoln was a young man he ran for the legislature in Illinois and was badly swamped. He was 23 years of age at the time and had been in that state but two years, and in his own home precinct but six months. And he was absent from his home ground with the exception of one week during the campaign. There were thirteen candidates in the field, four were to be elected and Lincoln ran eighth.

* * *

He was not a good businessman in many ways. He failed in business but spent many years of his life paying up the debts of a worthless partner. During this period he married, raised a family, bought a home and took his place in the economic life of Springfield.

* * *

Other failures include: Romance; he fell in love with a beautiful young woman to whom he became engaged—then she died. Entering politics he ran for Congress and was badly defeated. Lincoln sought an appointment to the United States land office but failed. He was a candidate for the United States Senate and was badly defeated. In 1856 he became a candidate for the vice presidency and was again defeated. Douglas also defeated him for the senate.

* * *

In the face of these reverses Lincoln kept forging ahead. Undaunted by these setbacks the great Emancipator kept moving

TWEEDSMUIR, 64, GOVERNOR OF CANADA, DIES

Montreal, Feb. 12 (AP)—Political activity halted today as the dominion mourned the death of 64-year-old Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general of Canada since 1935, novelist, lawyer and newspaperman.

Lord Tweedsmuir died Sunday night in the Montreal Neurological institute after the third operation since a fall last Tuesday. Five attending physicians said the blocking of a small artery in the brain caused him to fall, "thereby adding a concussion of the brain."

Among hundreds of messages received by Lady Tweedsmuir was one from President Roosevelt saying he was "shocked and greatly grieved" at her husband's death.

The body of the governor-general will lie in state at Ottawa in the senate chamber before funeral services Wednesday. Burial will be in Great Britain. A special train will take the body to Ottawa, Tuesday.

The government proclaimed a seven-day period of public mourning.

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King said:

"In the passing of his excellency, the people of Canada have lost one of the greatest and most revered of their governors-general, and a friend who from the day of his arrival in this country dedicated his life to their service."

King to Name Successor

Pending the appointment of a successor, the governor-general's duties were taken over by the chief justice of Canada, Sir Lyman Duff.

King George Vi will appoint the new governor-general.

While the British press has mentioned names of three men as possible successors to Lord Tweedsmuir, the wishes of Canada likely will bear great weight. It is customary for the Ottawa cabinet to make a recommendation to the King.

Among those mentioned are the Duke of Devonshire, the Marquess of Aberdeen and the Earl of Athlone.

The son of Rev. John Masterton Buchan, a minister of the free church, John Buchan, later to become Lord Tweedsmuir, was born in the Scottish borderland country, August 26, 1875. A graduate of Oxford, he was admitted to the English bar, but soon entered the publishing field. He was the author of nearly 60 volumes including biographies, histories and fiction.

During the World war, he was a liaison officer between GHQ and the British government and after the war became directors of Reuters, British news agency. He was raised to the peerage in 1935 as the first Baron of Tweedsmuir of Elsfield after several years of government service in various capacities. The same year, he was appointed governor-general.

KEESEY A CANDIDATE

Truman J. Keesey, of York, announced Sunday he will again seek the democratic nomination for representative from the 22nd congressional district of Pennsylvania. He was an unsuccessful candidate at the primaries two years ago.

A TRIBUTE

One hundred and thirty-one years have been added to the annals of time since a son named Abraham was born to Thomas and Nancy Hanks Lincoln in Hardin, now LaRue, county, Kentucky, in a log cabin on a poor farm where seven years were spent. After moving to Spencer county, Indiana, fourteen years were spent there. Another move was then made to Macon county, Illinois. Abraham was then of age and for some time lived at New Salem and later at Springfield, the capital of the state. He was living at the latter place when he was nominated and elected to the highest office within the gift of the American people.

When he was nominated he was asked for material for an account of his early life. In reply thereto he said: "It is a great folly to attempt to make anything out of my early life. It can be condensed into a single sentence, and that sentence you will find in Gray's Elegy: 'The short and simple annals of the poor'."

When he took the oath of office as the sixteenth President of the United States, he was surrounded with conditions that threatened the preservation of the Union as a plan was then under way for its dismemberment by a secession movement of some of the states. After a bloody war of four years the issue between the North and the South was settled. At its beginning Lincoln said his paramount object in waging the war was the preservation of the Union, and by his wise policies that was accomplished.

While Washington was the father and founder of the Republic it can truly be said that Lincoln was its preserver and saviour.

A little more than seventy-six years have passed since he came to Gettysburg and delivered his immortal address that is a marvelous piece of English composition and is familiar to every American citizen as well as many of foreign lands.

Almost seventy-five years have gone since his mortal career was ended by an assassin. Although the stirring scenes have passed, his memory grows fonder and his singular excellence of character and conduct becomes brighter. He was a great man raised by Providence at a time when this country was in need of a great statesman to pilot it through troublous times. He did not see many happy days. As President he was weighted down with great responsibilities. As time passes his fame grows brighter, and, as said by Secretary of War Stanton who stood beside him when he breathed his last: "Now he belongs to the ages." — William C. Storrick, Gettysburg.

ALLIES STATION VOLUNTEERS IN NEAR EAST AREA

Suez, Egypt, Feb. 12 (AP)—One of the greatest armies ever transported by sea landed here today from New Zealand and Australia to join the British-French allies' forces in the Near East.

A tent city at the edge of the desert was partly prepared for the husky Anzacs, welcomed at the end of their 10,000-mile voyage by Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden with a message from King George VI.

The New Zealanders and Australians were all volunteers, many of them sons of troops that crossed the seas to fight in Britain's army in the past war.

A Reuters dispatch for transmission from Suez said the great armada of transports and British warships were anchored "as far as the eye could see."

How many additional troops had arrived was not disclosed.

(It was indicated last week that the British-French allies and Turkey, with whom they are linked in a mutual assistance agreement, can put together a force of about three-quarters of a million men in the Near East, potential back-door battlefield of the European war.)

The Australians were under command of Lieutenant-General Sir Thomas Blamey, chief of staff of the Australian corps in 1918 and of the expeditionary force in the World war.

Major-General B. C. Freyberg commanded the New Zealanders.

The New Zealanders, all volunteers who have had three months of training, looked fit. Most of them were young, with a sprinkling of grizzled veterans of the last war.

Eden was cheered lustily when he told the men that in the unity of the British commonwealth "lies the certainty of final victory and the assurance of better things to come."

Four locked and sealed boxes of Lincoln manuscripts in the Library of Congress which are not to be opened until July 26, 1947, promise to become the nation's most mysterious treasure chests. They contain the personal papers of Abraham Lincoln, and approximately ten thousand different items are said to be included in the collection.

Lincoln was the first famous American to have his portrait appear on a coin of the United States. In 1909, during the one hundredth anniversary of his birth, the Lincoln one cent piece was put in circulation. Each successive year since then the mints of the country have struck off an ample supply of bright shining pennies.

Lincoln's political philosophy is best revealed to better advantage in some of the following statements which he made apparently after much reflection:

"We cannot have free government without elections."

"So ready are we all to cry out and ascribe motives when our own toes are pinched."

"The way these measures were to help the cause was not to be by magic or miracles."

"I go no further than this because I wish to avoid both the substance and appearance of dictation."

"I could not, however, let the whole political result go to smash, on a point merely personal to myself."

"I do not impugn that motives of any one opposed to me. It is no pleasure to me to triumph over anyone."

"In this age, and in this country, public sentiment is everything. With it nothing can fail, against it nothing can succeed."

"To give victory to the right, not bloody bullets but peaceful ballots only are necessary. Thanks to our good old Constitution and organization under it, only these are necessary."

"Nothing is likely to be so baleful in the great work before us as stepping aside from the main object to consider who will get the offices if a small matter shall go thus, and who else will get them if it shall go otherwise. It is time now for real patriots to rise above all this."

Says Lincoln Was 'No Baby Kisser'

Pittsburgh, Feb. 12 (AP).—Abraham Lincoln was a "good politician" but "no baby kisser," Frank M. Sperry recalled today on the Civil war President's birthday anniversary.

Sperry, 84, a retired writer and salesman, said his mother took him, at the age of 5, to Springfield, Illinois, to see Lincoln, who was then campaigning for the presidency.

"He was terribly large and ugly, and I was scared until he spoke," Sperry said. "He asked me if he might have one of my curls and I told him he could take them all."

Showing a complete reversal of form from that exhibited last Wednesday, the Gettysburg college basketball team broke its three-game losing streak here Saturday evening by defeating Bucknell in a league game, 35-30, before a large crowd.

Bob Buyer, sophomore forward, found the zone defense as employed by the Bisons to his liking and made good use of his side-court shots to net a total of 19 points for the evening.

The victory put the Bullets back into the running for the league championship and moved them into second place.

Bullets In Lead

Excepting for the first period, Coach "Hen" Bream's charges led the whole way and were never seriously threatened. After being held to a 6-5 lead at the end of the first quarter four straight goals by Sohnleitner, Buyer, Hamilton and another by Buyer in the early stages of the second quarter gave Gettysburg a commanding lead. At the close of the first half the Bullets led 20-13.

After the half time intermission Gettysburg ran its lead to 26-15 but the Bisons rallied to bring the score to 29-24 before Buyer looped a goal to make the score 31-24 as the round ended.

No scoring occurred in the first six minutes of play in the last period although the Bream-men blew three charity heaves and Bucknell a single free chuck. Buyer rammed through two nice shots which definitely clinched the game. Bucknell went into a man-for-man style of game in the last few minutes and although cutting the lead could do little in the remaining seconds of play.

Coach Bream altered his lineup which proved effective. "Reds" Bender took over a guard position and performed creditably although Buyer stole the show with his scoring. Longaker was easily the Bisons' star.

Frosh Triumph

The Bullet freshmen also showed great improvement to defeat the Glen Rock Independents in the preliminary game, 32-25. After battling to a 15-15 stalemate in the first half the yearling's took the lead in the third period and safely protected their lead until the end, Hardy and Heathcote played nice games for their respective teams.

Philadelphia, Feb. 12 (AP). — Applications for football coaching jobs at Temple university and Villanova college poured in today as officials of the two institutions sought successors to Fred Swan and Maurice J. (Clipper) Smith.

Neither institution indicated when its new coach would be selected or the probable choice. Neither were names of the applicants made public.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Feb. 12 (AP)—Far from being at the front—or near it—Max Schmeling is quietly training for his 'teenth joust with—you guessed it—Cousin Walter Neusel. . . . Note to Merill May: The Phillies are trying to locate you to give you a raise. (Your contract was returned undelivered) . . . Reports have it Mort Mahoney, director of mutuels in New England, will be in charge at the New York class tracks—Belmont and Saratoga—next season. . . . You can write our own ticket on whether Tony Galento's eyesight is defective. All we know is he bumped kerplunk into the microphone when he climbed into the ring to be introduced the other night. . . . Dodger season pasteboards went on sale today and there were 5,624 mail applicants to start things rolling.

Was it a dream?—Seems we read something about the Pacific coast conference going pure athletically. . . . Then what about a story relayed by the Oklahoma City Times, that a high school athlete out there had just been offered his tuition, expenses for books and $50 per month by one of the far-western institutions? . . . Furthermore, the story goes, the kid was told if he were injured and couldn't play he could keep on dragging down his $50 per until he graduated.

Mike Jacobs only hopes the Joe Louis retirement can be staved off until June 1941, when Mike figures Billy Conn will be fit and ready to carry on. . . . Ed Danforth, one of the country's outstanding sports editors, takes over on the Atlanta Journal today, with brother Morgan Blake, long one of the best in the business, shifting to a more important spot on the editorial page. . . . The championship Green Bay Packers have organized a basketball team and are barnstorming through Wisconsin to sellout houses. . . . Because of his tiny stature, Victory Morn, Col. Maxwell Howard's speedy colt, is known around Hialeah as "Pocket Battleship." . . . Prediction: When more and bigger seconds are run, Glenn Cunningham will run them.

Odditorium: The International league which has long claimed to be the top double A circuit, now can prove it. It has moved to the 28th floor at Fifth avenue. (The American association offices are on the third floor and the Pacific coast league's on the second) . . . Here's a believe-it-or-not: The Shubert (Kansas) junior high basketeers have scored consecutive shutouts, 23-0 and 39-0. . . . Mississippi's "Big Eight" football conference actually has 14 members. . . . And Meridian, (40,000 pop.) is the only city of that size with two natives on the same big league ball club—Eric McNair and Skeeter Webb, of the White Sox. . . . Tim Mara never had seen a football game when he bought the New York Giants and Eddie Gallagher, of Oklahoma A. and M. has turned out 18 undefeated wrestling teams in 22 years. . . . Did somebody remark about this screwy world?

Louis says he had to go easy with Godoy to save his hands. . . . True Arturo was a hard guy to fight. . . . And maybe he was a bit of a clown. . . . But Joe has met other clowns—notably the Messrs. Levinsky and Galento—on whom he wasn't afraid to use his hands. . . . What is he getting paid for, anyway—to fight or protect his hands?

Ouch, ouch, ouch! !—Blame this one on Roger Hickey, of Petersburg, Virginia: "Being Leap Year, the 1940 season should bring a flock of new records in the high jump and pole vault, what?"

TWO PITTSBURGH GRID COACHES NAMED

Pittsburgh, Feb. 12 (AP).—The University of Pittsburgh today announced the appointment of two former Pitt football players, Harold Stebbins and Luther Richards, to its grid coaching staff.

Stebbins, halfback on the 1936-38 teams, will become backfield coach, succeeding Mike Nicksick, who went to West Virginia university to assist Coach Bill Kern.

Richards, guard with the 1935-37 squads, will have the duties of guard coach and full-time work in the intramural department. He relieves Walter Raskowski, graduate assistant last fall who has his last year in dental school ahead of him.

Head Coach Charley Bowser also announced that Bob Hoel, tackle coach last fall, will move up to the position of first assistant, and that Nick Kliskey has been appointed 1940 freshman coach.

FINNS DECLARE SOVIET POWER IS DECREASING

BY THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Foreign Writer

On the Mannerheim Line, Summa Sector, Feb. 12 (AP)—Confident Finnish officers said today the power of the Red army's infantry attacks was waning and predicted an end soon to the battle on this front, now 11 days old.

Although Soviet Russia has thrown her greatest offensive might into her effort to crack the Mannerheim line here, it still is intact as far as I could observe.

Within a mile and a half of Summa, pivotal point of the Soviet offensive, where I visited Finnish positions in a tour of the front afoot and by sled, I found no indication that the Finns' steel-and-concrete line had been pierced.

(In Moscow, however, a Russian communique reported 16 Finnish fortifications captured. This, apparently, was in addition to 13 "artillery forts" which the Russians previously had reported captured and which the Finns denied had been taken.)

Onslaughts Continue

The Russian onslaughts continued with infantry attacking under the protection of artillery barrages which rained shells at a rate of almost two a second.

But, said a Finnish commander, "Tiredness on the Russian side is apparent."

"The Soviet high command," he said, describing the fighting, "seems definitely to have counted on a surprise attack in the Summa sector.

"The enemy is using the best of all the means at its disposal, not only heavy artillery, but also a great amount of bombing planes in conjunction with many tanks, armored sledges and armor-sheltered infantry.

"Infantrymen even atop tanks are dropping off at intervals to fight.

"There has been no chance to count enemy losses, but last Friday on a 300-foot stretch 150 Russians were killed by our first line. The total killed has been many thousands."

"The Russians have been given huge amounts of vodka to drink before fighting. We have found kegs of it on the battlefields. My men saw for sure one day Soviets shot from behind, we believe by political troops forcing the fight."

Tribute for Tankmen

Officers on the Finnish front lines declare Soviet military planes have had little influence on the tide of battle, although they stress their own lack of planes for combat.

I went Saturday night to within about a mile of Summa to see as nearly as possible at first-hand how the Finnish lines are withstanding the pressure of Red army infantry, artillery and mechanized attack.

For 30 minutes enroute, our party took refuge in a dugout while eight-inch shells, falling within 50 yards, rattled the snug shelter. Audible also were the boom and whine of occasional howitzer and trench mortar fire.

The officer with me said the shelling often was at the rate of two a second in an area of about 880 square yards. I heard and counted 106 bursts in one minute Sunday.

The Finnish officer paid tribute to crews of the Red army's tanks but disparaged its artillerymen. He said the Russian heavy artillery, emplaced far behind the lines, was not very accurate or effective, but that the tankmen were trained highly, difficult to combat and "very brave."

FIRE MYSTERY

Renovo, Pa., Feb. 12 (AP).—Volunteer firemen and officials of the Civilian Conservation corps camp at nearby Cook's run have this puzzle confronting them: Cabs of six trucks in the camp garage were damage by fire Sunday, but the truck bodies and the trucks at the two ends of the line were not touched.

TEETHING AT 74

Conyngham, Pa., Feb. 12 (AP).—Bothered by an aching jaw, 74-year-old Robert Preston consulted a dentist. Now he's patiently awaiting his third set of upper jaw teeth, which the dentist said would break through the gums shortly.

Undefeated N.Y.U. Quint Meets Bullets Tuesday

One of the greatest collegiate basketball teams in the country and probably the best ever to appear here will invade Gettysburg Tuesday evening when New York university's undefeated dribblers clash with Coach "Hen" Bream's Gettysburg college Bullets.

The Violets, with practically the same team as represented them last year, have compiled a 12-game winning streak this season by defeating some of the best teams in the country. Their latest victim was Saturday night when Notre Dame took a 52-43 lacing. Throughout the country New York university is being acclaimed as a strong contender for the national championship.

The visitors are top-heavy favorites to down the locals but Coach Howard Cann very definitely respects the great home record of the Bullets. He has listed a drill for his squad on the college court for Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

The Violets were scheduled to leave New York this afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. Tonight will be spent at the Penn Harris hotel, Harrisburg. Following the game here Tuesday the Violets will spend the night at Hotel Gettysburg and will leave by bus in the morning for State College when Penn State will be met Wednesday evening.

12-Man Squad

Coach Cann will bring a squad of 12 players here including Captain Bob Lewis, high scorer in the Metropolitan league last year and heralded as one of the best collegiate players in action this season. Other players who will make the trip are Edward Stevens, Ralph Kaplowitz, Frank Turner, Wilbert Falk, Marvin Loewith, Robert Davidoff, Benjamin Auerback, Irving Dubinsky, Mortimer Lazar, Emanuel Schuman and Paul Payne. The party will be completed by John Williams, trainer, and Irving Shay, manager.

Last year the Violets defeated Gettysburg on the N.Y.U. court, 44-36 after a nip and tuck battle. While the Bullets do not measure up to last year's quintet they are determined to make things interesting for their opponent and are primed for a real battle.

Yovicsin May Play

Coach "Hen" Bream announced today that Johnny Yovicsin may be used in the game after being out with an injury for two weeks. However, the former Steelton high flash, will probably be used sparingly due to the important league battle here with Muhlenberg Friday evening.

Practically every reserved seat in the gymnasium has been sold and one of the largest crowds ever to jam the local gymnasium is expected to witness the clash.

As a preliminary game the Bullet frosh will meet the strong Flinchbaugh Brothers dribblers of York.

BLAMES THE WEATHER

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 12 (AP).—A sting on her leg as she walked along a rainswept street led Helen Brown to the discovery that a ring had been burned around one of her stockings. Believing she had been struck by a "live" wire, she called police. The police found, not a wire, but a piece of wet sewing thread dangling from an overhead wire. They theorized the wet thread carried enough electricity to have ruined the stockings.

DIES AT 101

Pittsburgh, Feb. 12 (AP).—Mrs. Elmira Painter Risher, whose most cherished wish—that she live to be 100 years old—was realized, died of pneumonia Saturday. She was 101. Mrs. Risher was a native of Callensburg, Pa.

REPUBLICANS START WEEK OF SPEECH-MAKING

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP).—Touching off a week of widespread political activity, republican orators utilized Abraham Lincoln's birth anniversary today to sound the opening of their election campaign.

Former President Hoover heads the speakers, giving a radio address from Omaha at 9 p. m. E.S.T. Several potential candidates for the presidential nomination, although avoiding mention of their own aspirations, will deliver addresses expressing their views on current issues.

They include Senator Taft, of Ohio, at Greensboro, North Carolina; District Attorney Dewey, of New York, at Portland, Oregon; National Chairman John Hamilton, at New York; Senator Bridges, of New Hampshire, at Oklahoma City, and Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, at Brooklyn.

Governors James, of Pennsylvania, and Stassen, of Minnesota will join Governor Dickinson, of Michigan, in a rally at Grand Rapids, Michigan, with Senator Vanderberg presiding.

Vandenberg, in a major speech at St. Paul Saturday, outlined a program—headed by encouragement of business—which was generally accepted as his platform for the presidential nomination.

Alf M. Landon, the 1936 republican standard bearer, contrasted Lincoln with Hitler and Stalin in an address Sunday night at Springfield, Illinois.

"Hitler and Stalin force the state to live and die for them," he said. "Lincoln lived and died for the state."

But the Lincoln day festivities were not confined to republicans. On the program with Landon was Postmaster General Farley, who entered the democratic presidential primary in Massachusetts on Saturday.

Farley declined to tell reporters whether he had become an active presidential candidate by his letter authorizing Massachusetts party leaders to file a slate of convention delegates pledged to his support.

Farley's move received these interpretations here:

1. That the President had let Farley know he would not seek a third term and had left the field open.

2. That the democratic chairman was trying to hold the Massachusetts delegation for Mr. Roosevelt if the latter should decide to run.

3. That Farley wanted to obtain a bloc of delegates in order to strengthen his already powerful voice at the convention, whether or not he pressed his own candidacy.

TOO CLOSE FOR COMFORT

Philadelphia, Feb. 12 (AP). — A skid on the slippery pavement left Joseph Stewart's automobile teetering over the edge of the Passyunk avenue bridge across the Schuylkill river, its rear wheels spinning in mid-air, Sunday. Stewart carefully climbed out of the machine, uninjured.

WILL POWER

We climb no higher than our hopes,
And be it mountain tall or hill,
Not all the staffs and scaling ropes
Can take us further than our will.

The goals we gain are those we dare!
We journey on or choose to stay.
Even how much of pain we'll bear
Remains for us alone to say.

Sometimes the gods of chance assist,
Sometimes ill-fortune holds us back,
But we accept or we resist,
Retreat or plan a fresh attack.

And out of all life's loss and gain,
At last this truth is understood:
The highest point that we attain
Was won because we thought we could.

2 HANGINGS CAUSE RIOTS IN IRELAND

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 12 (AP)—Resentment of the Irish republican army generated by Great Britain's hanging of two of its members burst forth over the week-end in rioting and a raid on an armory, and was accompanied by a demand for "re-establishing" the Irish republic.

About 2,000 I.R.A. sympathizers battled club-wielding police with bottles, stones and bricks in an hour of bitter street fighting Sunday. Scores were injured and 20 arrested.

Despite a ban on demonstrations the I.R.A. sympathizers attempted to hold a meeting in the Falls Road area of Belfast, and police charged them.

COLLECT SCRAP IRON

Paris, Feb. 12 (AP)—Boy Scouts started a house-to-house collection of scrap iron for melting into French armaments today, collecting everything from bird cages to German helmits brought back in 1918. The first test collection yielded a breastplate of a French cuirassier worn in the 1870 war between France and Prussia.

Citizens Worried About Lightning With Powder Near

Elk Mills, Md., Feb. 12 (AP).—The old tag about sitting on a powder barrel is literally true for Elk Mills Residents.

They don't like the idea of having 300,000 pounds of the Army's TNT buried a quarter of a mile from town.

It's buried in a pit, 25 feet long and eight feet deep; guards are posted over the pit day and night and the neighborhood is plastered with red signs warning against smoking or lighting fires.

What Elk Mills is worried about is lightning.

Today's Talk

THE LIVING LINCOLN

MORE books have been written on, and about, Napoleon and Lincoln than perhaps any other two men in history. Yet what a contrast in men!

A great lesson from the career of Napoleon still is fresh in our minds — that mere conquest is temporary. You can conquer territory, but not the spirit of a people. All history has proved this to be true.

Abraham Lincoln's place in history is unique. No man ever reached greater heights simply through the force of his character. He was gentle, tolerant, understanding. But above all he sought justice for everyone. He didn't believe that anyone in this world should be enslaved. What a contrast to the ideas of those on the other side of the Atlantic and Pacific who think only in terms of conquest and enslavement of peoples conquered!

Lincoln was, and shall forever remain, an example of supreme character, throwing a great beam of light upon the path of mankind in its struggle to bring peace and good will to all men. Stanton, his War Secretary, stated prophetically when he said at his death: "Now he belongs to the ages!"

This day celebrates his birthday. It is well that all of us should try to get some of his spirit into our hearts, and try to exemplify his noble ideals. Especially his humility, which was so characteristic. Those who knew him, and who have since written of him, always mention his gentleness and his courtesy. There was no bombast or boast to him. His great spirit stalked like a giant among men, though in an invisible way.

From a background of poverty, privation, tragic childhood and early manhood, there arose this figure to pilot a nation through its Gethsemane.

This is the birthday of the living Lincoln, whose vanished life still hovers over the nations of the earth in spirit, and which keeps crying: "With malice toward none; with charity for all."

Blood Runs Cold

—BY ANN DEMAREST—

YESTERDAY: Lathrop's wife had an opportunity to murder Joan Kent while she was waiting for Lathrop to come out of the apartment house. Christine finds a note added to her list of questions telling her to keep out. Later the paper disappears.

Chapter 24

Episode in the Night

The room seemed suddenly warm and oppressive. I couldn't take my eyes from Richard's thin, pale face. It was a very unpleasant sensation, the thought that he might be involved. But I kept forgetting the others in the house: Adrianne Wells alone in the front apartment; Mr. Kimball and Ishi in the shop; Whitefield in his room up on the third floor, and Mrs. Evans, with her long ears, in the attic.

Dirck was examining the board closely. "I wouldn't mention this to anyone," he cautioned us, looking up with grave eyes. "Someone is evidently trying to frighten you, Chris. It may be just a practical joke."

"I wish I thought so," I said with some asperity.

"What is this all about, anyway?" Richard looked at Dirck.

And briefly Dirck explained it to him. Then he turned to me. "Do me a favor, Chris. This might not do any good, but I'd like to experiment. Before you go to bed tonight make another list and tack it to the board, just as you did before. Tomorrow we may have another visit from this person. And try not to touch the board any more than you can help. There may be fingerprints."

"I hate to be used as bait," I said, but finally I agreed with some reluctance.

It gave me a queer feeling to have my apartment enlisted to lure a murderer. And it was evidently a person who kept a close watch on all of my moves. I'd been out of my room less than ten minutes to go down to the corner, and in that short time the paper was taken. With someone so watchful I dreaded spending another night alone in my apartment on the fire escape. My feelings must have been pretty obvious because Dirck smiled reassuringly.

"I wouldn't worry if I were you. I hardly think anything will happen tonight," he said, belying all of those previous emphatic warnings. "And I'm going to spend the night with Richard, if he'll let me."

He turned to Richard, who nodded.

"If you want anything, Chris, just tap on the steam pipe there in the corner three times. I'll hear it and tap back and be with you immediately."

"What about me?" Mary Ann asked in her high-pitched voice. "You don't seem to be thinking much about my safety."

Something closed back of Dirck's calm blue eyes. "I think you'll be safe," he said quietly. "And there are two of you in there."

The assurance that Dirck would be within call made me feel a little better. But after the men left with Mary Ann, who was pouting childishly over Dirck's remark, I locked the door securely this time, thinking what a futile gesture it was. Whoever got into my room before would doubtless manage it again even if the door were locked.

I undressed again, hoping that it would be the last time for one night. And then I sat down on the desk and tried to think up another list of questions. There was so much that I didn't understand; in fact everything and everyone mixed up in the murder seemed to have no rhyme nor reason, so I had a hard time getting my thoughts into any constructive shape.

Finally, after what seemed to be a long time, I scribbled down some questions:

Did the necklace used to strangle Joan Kent come from Tim Lathrop?

How did the street door happen to be unlocked at a quarter of eleven?

Are Adrianne Wells and Kincaid telling the truth about the quarrel in the hall?

Is there any ill feeling between Mr. Kimball and his sister?

And at the bottom of the sheet I wrote:

Who took my list of questions?

A Crash

By the time I'd finished I was exhausted and ready to go to bed. The room was so hot that I had to open a window, and of course all of them stuck. I couldn't budge any, except the only one I didn't want to have open, and that was the one overlooking the fire escape. The fresh paint on the window casings seemed to act like cement. So, praying under my breath, I pushed the window up about a foot. The night was clear and not nearly as cold as earlier in the evening, and there was a moon lighting an apparently peaceful world.

A person's capacity for fear must be almost limitless. As I dozed off it seemed to me after all that had happened I must, by this time, be shock proof. The thought was comforting enough at least to allow me to drop off into a light sleep.

But my theory was blasted within an hour.

I awakened, for no reason, apparently, except that I felt a tenseness in the air, the way it is in the summer before a thunderstorm. Lying there stiffly, I strained my eyes towards the fire escape.

And then came the crash that almost made my heart stop beating.

It sounded as though something heavy came hurtling through the open window and broke into a thousand pieces on the floor.

It must have been a couple of minutes before I pulled myself together enough to get out of bed. How I finally moved I'll never know. The sheets, when I pushed them back, seemed to crackle like paper in the hush that followed the crash. Groping across the cold floor on all fours, I tapped on the pipe three times with the heel of one of my red leather mules. It sounded loud enough to wake up the dead.

I crouched in the corner waiting for the answer.

It did not come. There was no sound from the room above me.

Strangely enough my first reaction was not of fright. I clung feverishly to the idea that both of the men must be sound asleep. So I clutched the slipper again and banged this time even louder and more urgently.

I waited there in the dark, my hands pressed against the cold floor to steady myself. It seemed more like hours than seconds.

Still there was no answer from the third floor. There was nothing but an awful engulfing silence.

What had happened to Dirck and Richard?

Surely one of them would have wakened the second time if they hadn't heard me before.

The third time I rapped I knew, fearfully now, that it was useless.

Either there was no one up in that apartment or something had happened to them.

I tried to think what to do next and finally forced myself to crawl across the floor to the window.

On the small rug below the sill my hands closed on moist earth. Moist earth and sharp, jagged fragments of pottery.

Toby's large pot of geraniums, that I'd forgotten to take off the window sill before I went to bed, was broken. That was the noise I'd heard.

But how could it have happened? There wasn't a breath of air stirring, not even enough to move the curtains, and the jar was very heavy.

I was certain it couldn't possibly have blown off onto the floor.

Cautiously I got up and with my body wrapped in the chintz curtain I peered out of the window. For a moment, blinking in the dark, I couldn't see a thing.

After a moment there came a muffled sound from below. Fearfully, I strained my eyes downward and in the yard I saw two figures moving about and heard footsteps scraping on the cement walk. As I bent forward one figure seemed to look up towards my window and, in a muffled voice, called my name.

Afterwards all I could remember was that I recognized the voice so it must have been the great relief I felt that made me faint, much to my shame, for the first time in my life.

When I came to in a pool of mud and water and red geraniums, the lights were on and Dick and Richard were kneeling beside me, pouring water all over my yellow pajamas and the remnants of the plant.

"Thank God, you're all right?" Dirck said in a choky voice. "Chris, I'll never forgive myself for frightening you so badly."

I couldn't even give him a reasuring answer. My voice was lost somewhere down in my chest.

He helped me crawl out of the debris. My pajamas were plastered to my skin, and with eyes averted he handed me my bathrobe. I tried to laugh and failed miserably. And when with Richard's help they finally got me into a chair and closed and locked the window, I managed to summon voice enough to ask what had happened.

They shook their heads, refusing to speak. Richard pulled a blanket off the couch and wrapped it around me, while Dirck mopped up the water and did a gentleman's best cleaning up the bits of broken pottery and geraniums.

"We'll talk later," Dirck said. "You're as white as a sheet. Have you any whiskey or brandy upstairs, Richard?"

Richard brightened. "A bottle of cognac. It wouldn't hurt any of us to have a drink."

"That's swell. Will you get it? We've got to get her back on her feet."

I looked down at my drenched pajamas. "You go, too, Dirck. I've got to climb out of these things or I'll mildew."

"Take it easy now, Miss Howarth," he smiled. "You've had a pretty bad shock."

Rainfall Causes No Flood Threats

Harrisburg, Feb. 12 (AP).—The federal-state flood forecasting service reported today that heavy rainfall in some sections over the week-end has caused "no rise of any consequence" in any of the major watersheds of Pennsylvania.

George Weber, of the federal geologic survey, said "the ice hasn't started to move yet" in the Susquehanna, Schuylkill and Delaware rivers, but that the "holes in the ice are enlarging."

In the Allegheny, he said, reports show the ice is holding, while the Monongahela is open in sections, with river boats chopping up the ice.

LINER TORPEDOED

Amsterdam, Feb. 12 (AP)—The 6,353-ton Holland-Amerika liner Burgerdijk was torpedoed and sunk on Saturday by a German submarine while on a direct run from New York to Rotterdam, the vessel's owners announced today. The ship was sent to the bottom 15 miles south of Bishop's Rock, off the southwestern tip of England, the line announced. The crew of about 45 and the passengers, their number undisclosed immediately, were rescued by the Holland-Amerika steamer Edam, it was stated.

FARLEY ASSURED

New York, Feb. 12 (AP).—The World-Telegram says that "Postmaster General Farley has told Mr. Roosevelt he is strongly opposed to a third term" and that "in reply he (Farley) has received from the President what he regards as assurance that Mr. Roosevelt will not be a candidate."

EDUCATOR RAPS EXAM SYSTEM; USES 'TEST' PLAN

Harrisburg, Feb. 12 (AP)—A Pennsylvania school executive today criticized the "nightmare" of mid-year and final examinations and recommended instead a system of "comprehensive tests" covering material taught during each marking period of approximately six weeks.

G. A. Eichler, superintendent of Northampton schools, said the traditional system of mid-years and finals brings "feverish" cramming.

It makes it possible, he wrote in the bulletin of the Pennsylvania Education association, "for students to fall into the habit of doing poor work during most of the term and depending upon a sudden spurt to get them through. x x x Such a habit is a great handicap to success in life where day-to-day steadiness is expected and not superhuman spurts once in a while."

The six-week tests have now been in vogue in Northampton for eight years, and, Eichler pointed out, "good students still make good in college and much anxiety has been eliminated. The school moves smoothly from September to June."

None is exempt from these exams, as is sometimes the case in the usual system. "Life is not a system of exemptions," Eichler commented, "and students need to acquire the ability of expressing themselves confidently under all circumstances."

An objective type of test is recommended but it is up to the teachers' judgment in the Northampton plan.

After the first six-week test, each succeeding written quiz contains an increasing number of reviewing questions. This is stepped up until the final test contains about one-half review questions and one-half on the current marking period.

The examination time also is increased, from onehalf a period at the beginning of a school year to a full period at the end.

In this way, Eichler explained, "we are endeavoring to tie together effectively the work of the whole year."

And—to add spice—several unannounced tests are given in each marking period.

IT'S ODD

But It's Science

(By The Associated Press)

Cincinnati.—Since the birth of the printing press, in 1471, the quality of ink has been tested with the human finger tip.

The finger-tip test possibly goes back even to the time when the Chinese originated printing with blocks.

Now a machine has replaced this, one of the oldest human skills. The new device is the inkometer developed by Prof. Robert F. Reed, research director of the institute of scientific research, University of Cincinnati.

For good printing, two qualities are required of ink. One is called tack. It means stickiness or cohesiveness. If tack is too great, money is wasted on the extra power required to turn the ink-distributing rollers. Or the ink may peel or injure the printed paper.

The other quality is length. This is the capability of the ink for drawing into long threads. Experts guessed both by the gentle pull felt on the finger tip withdrawn from a touch of ink.

The new inkometer is a pair of rollers, their surfaces inked, rotating with faces in contact. One roller is fixed. The other is free to lean a bit under pull of the ink. A pendulum attached to this free roller measures exactly the pull of the ink.

It is claimed that the machine is not only better than the finger test, but that it can do what no finger ever could, namely, measure tack and length of ink while being squeezed between moving rollers. This is important, since speed may change the qualities.

FAIRFIELD

Fairfield.—Approximately 75 persons attended the service held Friday evening in Zion Lutheran church by the Women's Missionary societies of the Protestant churches of Fairfield and vicinity in observance of the annual World Day of Prayer. Miss Flora Witherow, of the Lower Marsh Creek Presbyterian church, presided. The theme for the service was "In Quietness and in Confidence Shall Be Your Strength."

Lenten services which had been announced for every Wednesday during the Lenten season for the Protestant church of Fairfield have been changed to every Thursday. In so far as the place and officiating ministers are concerned, the original schedule will be carried out. The first service was held in the Evangelical and Reformed church with the Rev. A. W. Geigley delivering the sermon.

Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. Nevin Frantz, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Musselman, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Bream, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Dunbar, Mrs. C. L. Sheads, Mrs. S. L. Allison, Mrs. R. C. Neely and Harry Brown attended the annual meeting of the Adams County Agricultural Extension Association in Gettysburg on Wednesday. Mr. Brown is the president of the organization.

The Rev. and Mrs. B. F. Kline were guests on Sunday of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Galen Kline, Carlisle. The Rev. and Mrs. Kline celebrated their forty-eighth wedding anniversary.

Lewis Polley, of Philadelphia, was a week-end guest of his father, R. C Polley.

Miss Larue Krause, of Gettysburg, was a guest on Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Brown.

A solo, "Consider the Lilies," was presented by the Rev. E. G. Colestock, accompanied by Miss Helen McCleaf. Mrs. Russell Stoops was pianist during the singing of hymns. Mrs. Henry Burkhard, Mrs. Claire Rebert, Mrs. B. E. Benner, Mrs. Will Musselman and Mrs. Cecil Dunbar sang a selection.

How To Relieve Misery of Your CHEST COLD

Massage throat, chest, and back with plenty of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

VapoRub's double action brings double relief. It acts as a poultice to penetrate the surface skin; and its soothing medicinal vapors are breathed direct to the irritated air passages.

Try it, to loosen phlegm—to clear air passages—check tendency to cough—and also to relieve the tightness and soreness of chest muscles.

Marian Martin Pattern

TAILORED SHIRTWAIST DRESS

MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9104

Styles may come and styles may go, but the tailored shirtwaister perennially blooms in every smart woman's spring wardrobe. In pattern 9104, Marian Martin has designed a style that seems to take years from your age; inches from your size. Fullness below the all-around yoke in back gives between-the-shoulders freedom, and darts in front hold in bodice softness. Isn't the notched collar jauntily young? The front skirt panel is cut on a bias for extra width, and add strikingly shaped pockets for extra style. You may have straight sleeves, long or short, or loose flared sleeves with inverted pleats — a perfect style if your arms are plump.

Pattern 9104 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4⅝ yards 35 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Spring — in feminine language — means time for new clothes! Let Marian Martin's new pattern book show you the budget way to style. Need new afternoon or after-dark frocks? Interested in the "cotton field" or in "prints that bloom in Spring"? Just take your "pick"! There are resort clothes, town wear, bridal finery, accessories, home styles and needle-tips. Patterns for every age are included. Quick — order your copy! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

COUPLE BUILDS HOMES FOR POOR WITH PRIZE FUND

Philadelphia, Feb. 12 (AP)—A once poverty-stricken negro couple selected this 131st anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth to dedicate a low-cost housing project they are building for poor out of a $150,000 sweepstakes prize.

Benjamin and Pearl Mason, who a year ago were living with two children in a tumble down shack on $11.40 weekly relief, are pouring most of their wealth into a modern apartment for the betterment of less-fortunate members of their race.

It was only natural then, the Masons said, that the ground breaking ceremony should be arranged as a tribute to the Great Emancipator.

The building, with apartments for about 100 families and every modern convenience, will rise in the south Philadelphia slum district where the Masons lived during the dark days when they did not always have enough to eat.

After fortune smiled on them, they bought an inexpensive home in a more pretentious section of the city and a car. First, however, they paid back all the $2,133.90 they had received in relief.

All the rest of their winnings, except $57,000 earmarked for income tax, is being invested in the housing project. Forty thousand dollars was spent to buy a block of dilapidated tenaments which will be razed for the new building.

To further promote their aim to aid the negro, 75 per cent of the construction work will be done by members of their race.

The developments will be known as the "Frances Plaza Apartments" because it was the Mason's daughter, Frances, 10, who picked the winning sweepstakes ticket.

YOUTH CONGRESS SHOUTS 'YANKS ARE NOT COMING'

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Cheers, yells and stomping which greeted demands for continued American neutrality prompted leaders of the American Youth Congress to propose today a youth demonstration on the April 6 anniversary of the United States' entry into the World war.

Taking their cue from some 3,000 shouting delegates at the final session Sunday night, the assembly of the congress began discussing plans to tell the world that "the Yanks are not coming" again.

The delegates were silent when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt assured them that "I don't think for a minute that the President would do one thing that he thought would bring us into war, because he knows what war is like."

But they leaped to their feet in a frenzied ovation for sharp-spoken Ravni Patel, a member of the national congress of India, when he declared that many youths who otherwies follow the President "also say quite frankly that they will not follow even Franklin Delano Roosevelt into a war."

Still smarting under the fatherly rebuke which the President gave them on the soggy, drenched White House lawn on Saturday, they whooped approval of replies to Mr. Roosevelt's remark that a youth organization's resolution against loans to Finland was "twaddle."

The President's wife, asking that no one either clap or hiss until she had finished, answered written questions—the first from her second cousin, Archibald Roosevelt, Jr., of the republican Roosevelt's.

To his inquiry whether the congress should pass a resolution favoring Finland, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"No, I don't think you should go on record for anything you don't believe in." To Archibald, she added: "I also have sympathy for Finland."

One of young Roosevelt's colleagues, Stephen McArthur, Jr., young democrat of Kearney, New Jersey, was ejected from the meeting for the second time in three days when he attempted to introduce the Finnish resolution.

Leaders of the congress agreed to discuss with C.I.O. leaders today the prospects for a political alliance with labor's non-partisan league.

CRIME NEVER PAYS

Pueblo, Colo. (AP)—The thief who stole 14 hens and two roosters from Mary Terlip's coop feathered his trail instead of his nest and so police caught up with him. Officers said the chickens made such a fuss as the raider carried them away that feathers were scattered from the coop to the house where the thief disposed of his loot. The officers easily followed the trail and eventually captured the guilty man.

PROBE FOLLOWS ARREST OF 300 SECURITY WORKERS

Baltimoore, Feb. 12 (AP)—Federal Social Security board officials began an investigation today into the arrest of scores of board employes after a raid on a "stag" show which police said featured indecent dances by women performers.

Between 250 and 300 men and five women performers were held by Baltimore city and county officers who broke into a resort near here and stopped the show. Police Lieutenant William B. Dorsey said a majority of the men were employed in the board's Baltimore office.

Most of them, Dorsey said, were charged with disorderly conduct and freed on $2.70 bail each.

There were 6,920 farms in the United States in 1939, compared to 6,363 in 1910.

CAPITOL HILL MARKS HOLIDAY; JAMES ABSENT

Harrisburg, Feb. 12 (AP) — The state government, observing a Lincoln's birthday holiday, entered this week with Governor James absent from the capitol on one of the few trips he has taken out of the state since becoming chief executive a year ago.

The governor arrived in Grand Rapids, Michigan, to make an address given national significance before the Lincoln's day dinner of a group of republican clubs there as the guest of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, one of the aspirants for his party's presidential nomination this year.

James will resume his duties at the capitol Wednesday.

His other infrequent out-of-state trips include a flight last August to Booneville, Missouri, where his son died following an operation; six weeks of recuperation last fall at the Texas ranch of his friend, Carl L. Estes, and a brief visit to Miami, Florida, where his 25-year-old daughter, Doorthy, lay ill of influenza, last month.

Auto Secretaries Meet

The affiliated motor clubs of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and the Automobile Association of America called their secretaries and mangers into a two-day state-wide conference, starting today. Richard R. Brown, secretary of Commerce, will speak to them on the need for additional tourist trade in Pennsylvania.

Citizens and corporations who feel they are entitled to tax refunds have been asked to appear before the state board of finance and revenue in hearings set for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. More than 800 cases are listed on the board's docket.

Thursday is the deadline on personal property tax returns for 1939. William J. Hamilton, Jr., secretary of Revenue, is keeping open the department's office in Philadelphia (Keystone building) until 9 p. m. each day to facilitate the receipt of returns. The eight-mill tax is divided equally between the state and county governments.

The General State Authority's board meets Wednesday to speed plans for the authority's $7,000,000 improvement and equipment program, affecting 77 of the 84 state institutions constructed under the authority's original $65,000,000 building program started in 1937.

Milk orders effective Friday will establish new price schedules in four marketing areas over the state, while the Peoples Natural Gas company of Pittsburgh proposes to put into effect the same day new rates increasing its revenues more than a million dollars a year.

The gas rates, postponed for almost a year by the Public Utility commission, would affect domestic and industrial consumers in Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Blair, Cambria, Clarion, Fayette, Greene, Indiana, Lawrence, Washington and Westmoreland counties.

The molk orders set the producer, or farmer's price, for class 1 milk of four per cent butterfat content at $2.70 a hundredweight in the Harrisburg area, and at $2.80 for zone 1 of the central area, covering Clearfield county, and $2.70 for zone 2, comprising Centre and Huntingdon counties and part of Blair county.

Consumer prices will remain at 12 cents a quart in all areas, except Sharon-Farrell, where the price is being increased from 11 to 12 cents.

NEW TRADE PACT BETWEEN REDS, NAZIS HINTED

Berlin, Feb. 12 (AP).—Authoritative sources said today Soviet Russia and Germany concluded a new and more extensive trade agreement which will be announced officially later today, or Tuesday.

While these sources were unable to state the details of the agreement, they described it as being of far reaching importance, synchronizing the needs of both sires for supplies.

Soon after Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, concluded a friendship pact with the Soviet and then a trade agreement last August 20, German economists visited Russia and presented their "menu" of Russian raw materials in which Germany was specially interested.

In return, a Russian trade delegation toured Germany inspecting many industrial plants after which they submitted their requests for goods in exchange for raw materials.

WANTS SPORTS BAN

Washington, Feb. 12 (AP)—Charging that athletic rivalries between the Army and Navy led eventually to "waste and duplication" in the nation's defense program, Rep. Shafer (R.-Mich.) suggested today that the annual Army-Navy football game and all other sports contests between West Point and Annapolis be eliminated.

ELECTED SECRETARY

Carl Baum, of The Gettysburg Times staff, was elected secretary of the Interstate Advertising Managers' association at the organization's convention in York on Staurday.
